USSR-Bulgaria: Khrushchev's projected mid-May visit to Bulgaria with a Soviet party and government delegation will demonstrate Moscow's support for the present Bulgarian leadership. First secretary Todor Zhivkov has had difficulty with domestic Stalinists since the ouster of Stalinist ex-party boss Vulko Chervenkov from his party and major government positions late last fall. The party congress scheduled for August heightens the need for a resolution of the problem.

Moscow's concern with the Bulgarian party situation was evidenced last month by the attendance of a Soviet delegation, led by Party Secretary and Agitprop Chief Leonid Ilichev, at a Bulgarian conference called to assess the regime's record on de-Stalinization.

Latin America - UN: The Latin American caucus within the United Nations is now completely split over the question of Cuban participation. The caucus chairman believes that unless the views of several of the governments change, the Latin American states will no longer vote as a group.

Mexico, Brazil, and Bolivia are adamant in demanding Cuba's participation in spite of the decisions reached at Punta del Este which excluded Cuba from the Organization of American States. Other representatives have threatened to walk out of any meetings at which Cuba is seated. As a result of this controversy the caucus, which usually meets at least twice a month, has not met for two months. The chairman, at this time, sees no way of resolving the dispute. US representatives at the UN have found these meetings valuable for generating active support for US positions.
